DRIVEN TO BURGLARY

A Connoisseur Who Could not Otherwise Get What He Wanted.

An attempt was made to burglarize Balke's Big Curio store on Friday night. Yesterday morning it was found that a lower corner section of one of the plate glass windows had been cut with a diamond, the segment having a radius of nearly ten inches. The burglar must have found the glass too thick or else he was interrupted in his operations.

It is thought that he is not a common burglar; he is certainly not a very skillful one—but it is believed that he is a connoisseur in antiques. The articles in that window would not attract the ordinary thief for they could not be disposed of without great risk of detection. The window is filled with many very valuable relics of various centuries and countries. Nothing in the window is for sale. Mr. Balke has been importuned hundreds of times to part with articles of his collection but he has always refused to do so. The only way they can pass out of his hands is by burglary and theft. There is little doubt that the man with the diamond would not have attempted burglary if he could have induced Mr. Balke to engage with him in a legitimate transaction. Nearest the point where the cutting was done is a solid silver coffee set more than two hundred years old. Back of it are antique candle sticks of great age and in the neighborhood is a Russian samovar of the seventeenth century, once the property of a noble family.

One of the most valuable relics is the sword of a German Knight Templar. Not a member of the modern order, but a Knight of the Temple, a participant in the Crusades. The weapon is not a handsome one but in its time it must have been a serviceable one. It is much longer than even the more modern rapier and has the heavy cross handle.

There are two dueling pistols which once belonged to Field Marshal Blucher. There are several other dueling pistols of less distinguished ownership but of greater age. There is also a rifle of Greek manufacture. Its age is not definitely known but it must be great for it has the earliest style of flintlock known. Another valuable and rare article which has been very much in demand by connoisseurs is a javelin made of the tusk of a walrus. Then there are idols of various kinds and many other things which a connoisseur would not risk stealing but for which the expert collector would almost risk his life.

Many of these priceless curios were collected by Mr. Balke on his trip to Europe last summer. It will be remembered that he brought back many things to sell. His importations were in the nature of an experiment which has been so successful that he will engage in the business on a larger scale next summer. He will again visit Europe and will start earlier in the season, sailing from New York some time in April.

THE MONDAY RACES

Bus Fare to the Track Reduced to Ten Cents.

The bus drivers have consented to do something to encourage an attendance at the race track tomorrow that ought to insure a magnificent turnout. Hitherto the fare has been twenty-five cents to the track and as much more to get home again, which with the admission and grand stand fees made a dollar look like a cipher with the rim gone. The drivers have now agreed to carry passengers for ten cents each way. The saving of course looks like thirty cents but there are times when thirty cents would keep a whole family from starving and often prevent a suicide. The bus drivers are therefore to be called blessed hereafter, and their initial point for loading up will be the Center and Washington street corners.

The first race on Monday will be the second, and if necessary the third, heat of the race begun on Saturday between The Major, owned and driven by J. K. Wheat, and Brent J. owned by I. L. Hill and driven by Johnson. It is a half mile trot and The Major won the first heat. The next race will be a 2:45 trot, one mile, best three in five, for a purse of $100. The entries are the same as in the first race of Friday: Miss Colbert, Sirius Onward, Loboneer, Hartwood and Russell Mack.

The succeeding race will be a quarter mile trot for yearlings, best two in three. The entries are Otto Sarany, owned by C. A. Jakiel; Arizona, owned by J. C. Adams; Brent J. owned by I. L. Hill, and Dondello, owned by R. M. Johnson.

This will be followed by a free for all trot, one mile, best three in five. There are two entries: Delnetto, owned by A. H. Davidson, and Charlie M. owned by J. C. Adams.

There will be two running races, the first for three-eighths of a mile, between the horses that ran Friday, namely, Jim W. owned by Andy Hanson; Al D. owned by James Winningham, and Buttermilk, owned by J. R. Terry. The final event will be the ladies' running race in which the contestants will be Miss Yetter and Miss Elder. The names of their horses are not announced.

And that on Saturday, January the seventh, at 1 o'clock a meeting will convene to perfect a permanent organization for the above object; said meeting will be held at the same place.

COUGHING SPELL CAUSED DEATH

"Harry Duckwell, aged 25 years, choked to death early yesterday morning at his home, in the presence of his wife and child. He contracted a slight cold a few days ago and paid but little attention to it. Yesterday morning he was seized with a fit of coughing which continued for some time. His wife sent for a physician but before he could arrive, another coughing spell came on and Duckwell died from suffocation.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Dec. 1, 1901."
